

How does sponsorship work?

Educating these girls is a process, but nothing happens without you! Here are the steps we take to take a girl from the orphanage to the classroom.

1. You get involved.

All that we do begins with you. Whether you choose to make a single gift, a monthly donation or you directly sponsor a girl ready for college, your commitment is the push that sets her dream and our work in motion.

2. Partners stand by.

Teach Her has a growing team of trusted orphanage partners. These organizations are vetted and critical to the success of the program. Their commitment can significantly improve their girls' progress and help highlight areas that need extra attention.

3. Advocates take action.

On the ground, local Teach Her advocates ensure that all money is used properly, from school fees to supply purchases. They also provide support for students and facilitate feedback for sponsors.

For our college students, advocates keep regular contact and act as guides. For many of these girls, college can be both an exciting time and a challenging transition from orphanage life.

4. Girls get to work

All Teach Her students must adhere to certain scholarship expectations as well as to a code of conduct that they must sign and follow in order to bring honor to themselves and to everyone who is supporting them.

This said: We are also aware of the unique challenges these girls must overcome. And so we we monitor with extreme compassion, more interested in growth than perfection.

5. Proof is provided.

Teach Her believes in proving results and so grade reports and photos are sent to sponsors on a regular schedule. Our goal is to be as transparent as possible, providing a direct link between donations and these amazing girls.

6. Goals are reached.

Every girl's educational journey is different, and that's just fine. We want each girl to maximize her personal potential, and we'll offer skills training, career counseling and placement assistance to help her reach her goals. Together, we can change her future!-

START YOUR SPONSORSHIP

